Rosenberger expands High-Speed manufacturing capabilities in USA

Rosenberger is expanding the manufacturing capabilities of FAKRA, High-Speed FAKRA Mini and H-MTD cable assemblies to Rosenberger North America.

The production line at Rosenberger North America features the same processes, tooling, equipment, and quality of Rosenberger parts, which are machined and manufactured following all automotive standards. These products will be assembled in-house with state-of-the-art machinery and tooling designed by Rosenberger.

The parts produced at Rosenberger North America meet all Rosenberger standards.

Fit, form and function are synonymous, produced locally at Rosenberger North America, to support the North American market on short notice with quick turnaround times.

“We are excited for what the future holds with the added capability of manufacturing these leading-edge technological solutions in the North America market,” said Ryan Spencer, CEO of Rosenberger North America. “Servicing all industries, whether it be automotive, agriculture, robotics, semiconductors or military and defense, when performance is critical, we can address our customer’s high-speed data connectivity challenges. Rosenberger is the market leader for these innovative coaxial products, and the commitment to invest in new manufacturing technologies is why we take Pride in our Precision.”
